

WILSON PUTS RAILROAD CRISIS UP TO CONGRESS

ROUMANIANS IN TERRIFIC DRIVE THROUGH ALPS

Send 160,000 Men in First Rush Into Passes of Transylvania But Are Checked by Teutonic Allies.

RUSSIAN TROOPS ARE REINFORCING NEW ALLY

Field Marshall von Mackenzen Will Direct the Campaign Against Central Powers' Latest Enemy.

International News Service: GENEVA, Aug. 29.—Russian troops have entered Roumania from Bessarabia to reinforce the Roumanian army. If the Russians intend to attack Bulgaria they will have to traverse about 145 miles of Roumanian territory before reaching the Bulgarian border.

Field Marshall von Mackenzen, who is in supreme command of the Austro-German and Bulgarian forces in the Balkans, will direct the campaign against Roumania.

ASSAIL MOUNTAIN PASSES.

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—Roumanian forces estimated at 160,000 men are trying to batter their way through the passes of the Transylvanian Alps to overrun the plains of Hungary.

German and Austro-Hungarian soldiers fighting side by side have checked the first rush of the Roumanians which was undertaken before the Teutonic soldiers knew that Roumania had formally declared war against Austro-Hungary.

The prompt declaration of war against Roumania by Germany shows that this country is going to force an important part in the operations precipitated by the intervention of the newest enemy of the central powers.

Germans Were Prepared.

Lomb before Roumania opened hostilities the German general staff foresees the swing of affairs in Roumania began massing Austro-German troops and artillery along the Hungarian-Roumanian border and along the Danube in Serbia. The Roumanians had concentrated a heavy force of troops at Turnusvarcin on the Danube with the evident purpose of beginning a drive into Serbia. However, belief has been expressed by some military critics that the Roumanians will not undertake any extensive operations against the Austro-German and Bulgarian armies in the Balkans until the Russian army, which has been stationed upon the Roumanian frontier, in Bessarabia, has joined the Roumanians.

Turnusvarcin is 75 miles from the railway line which constitutes the chief artery of communication between Germany and Turkey.

Strelka Sudden Blow.

Roumania lost no time in striking her first blow after the declaration of war and the fighting which developed at Rothernthurm pass, south of Hermannstadt and Tomas pass, south of Kronstadt, is becoming more violent as reinforcements of men and guns reach both sides.

There have been exchanges of firing between Roumania and Bulgarian troops, across the Danube, near Rusechuk.

The Kaiser, who has been inspecting defensive works in Galicia, will return to Berlin this week. He will immediately confer with war office and other government officials upon the military and economic results which may be expected from Roumania's entry into the conflict.

Keep Close Watch.

Berlin is keeping close watch upon developments in Greece and the press has begun to warn the people that "further embarrassment" may be expected in the Balkans. A similar tone was adopted concerning Roumania for two weeks before King Ferdinand's government declared war.

Significance is attached to the fact that Prince Andrew of Greece is now in England and will be the guest of King George.

A special train was provided for the departure of the Roumanian ministers to Germany and Austria-Hungary and their staffs. The Roumanian minister asked for a farewell interview with Dr. von Jagow, the German foreign minister, but it was refused.

Germany, it is stated, is going into the campaign against Roumania wholeheartedly. There was not a dissenting voice in the federal council when it was proposed that Germany support Austria.

President Signs Army, Navy and Philippine Bills

International News Service: WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—President Wilson today signed the army bill, the navy bill and the Philippine bill at the white house, in the presence of cabinet officers and other members of his official family.

The army bill appropriates $267,596,556 for financing the new army of 216,000 peace strength, called for under the Hay-Chamberlain army reorganization bill.

The naval bill appropriates $214,284,389 and provides a three-year building program of 157 warships, including 10 battleships and six cruisers, four of each of which are to be begun this year.

The Philippine bill provides a more autonomous form of government for those islands.

REPORT RUSSIAN FORCE NOW CROSSING ROUMANIA

International News Service: VIENNA (via Berlin wireless), Aug. 29.—Large Russian forces are reported in a dispatch from Budapest to have crossed the Roumanian frontier in the direction of Bulgaria, apparently with the purpose of cutting the railroad connecting Germany and Turkey.

This Slav army consists, the dispatch states, of several infantry divisions, a strong cavalry division, and artillery that includes heavy guns. Most of the Russians are tried veterans.

TURKEY AND BULGARIA TO WAR ON ROUMANIA

International News Service: BERNE, Aug. 29.—Dispatches from Germany say that Turkey and Bulgaria are expected to declare war against Roumania within 24 hours. Extensive troop movements are under way in the Balkans. The entrance of Roumania has lengthened the eastern front nearly 900 miles, which necessitates heavy reinforcements in that zone of hostilities.

Germany has begun to make preparations for the entry of Greece into the war as German diplomats also now regard it as a certainty that the Hellenic kingdom will join the allies. Greek residents of Germany have begun to leave.

The Greek minister to Germany will be received in audience by Chancellor von Bethman-Hollweg tomorrow.

GERMANY PREPARING FOR ENTRY OF GREECE

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 29.—Germany has begun to make preparations for the entry of Greece into the war as German diplomats also now regard it as a certainty that the Hellenic kingdom will join the allies. Greek residents of Germany have begun to leave.

The Greek minister to Germany will be received in audience by Chancellor von Bethman-Hollweg tomorrow.

200,000 NOW ON STRIKE WOULD BE HIT BY NEW LAWS

Disturbances in Metal, Building and Mining Industries Cause Apprehension.

International News Service: WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—With several of the so-called pivot states already in the throes of industrial disturbances, political leaders today did not conceal their alarm over the possible effect on the political situation of legislation designed to avert the impending railroad strike.

Natie McCormick, chairman of the democratic national committee, before his return to New York today, reported numerous senators and congressmen plainly perturbed over reports just gathered by administration experts, disclosing the fact that 200,000 workers in union trades are on strike today, either for more wages or shorter hours, and a large majority of these are voters in doubtful sections.

Three Industries Affected.

Results of the canvass made by Sec'y of Labor Wilson's agents show the metal, building and mining industries principally affected, with disturbances centering chiefly in New York, Ohio, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Illinois. Latest compilations for 35 separate strike troubles, upon which accurate data was available, revealed that probably not less than 200,000 additional persons were indirectly involved, in addition to those who have thrown down their tools.

Conciliators of the department of labor have intervened in 40 disputes, involving 75,000 workers. In many of these negotiations have been under way for several weeks, with settlements deferred, because of the unwillingness of employers generally to accede to demands for increased pay. In several instances reported by mediators employers view favorably plans for the shorter work day.

200 HIBERNIANS OF INDIANA IN MEETING HERE

Mayor Keller Deliver Keys of City to Delegates Assembled at First Convention Session Tuesday.

AUTO RIDES ABOUT CITY THIS AFTERNOON

National President McGlaughlin Defends Americanism of Order — Mass Opens Convention.

There's a sweet-scented breeze from Killarney dancing abroad in this old booster city today. And a faint reminder of Erin is lingering with Kerry-kissed perfume from Donegal Bay.

Beneath the intertwined emblems of the United States and Ireland, 200 delegates of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and Ladies Auxiliary opened their state convention in the tapestry room at the Oliver hotel Tuesday morning.

At 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning the delegates assembled in the lobby of the Oliver hotel from which they marched in a body to St. Patrick's church.

The spirit of the gathering was expressed in the different addresses, all of the speakers emphasizing the fact that "we recognize one country, and only one, that recognize one flag and only one; that that country is America and that flag the Stars and Stripes."

Keller Gives Keys.

William M. Berkan, county president of the St. Joseph county A. O. H. and chairman of the convention committee, welcomed the delegates on behalf of his lodge and auxiliary, mentioning that seven years ago the delegates had come to South Bend and that now, as at that time, the city was glad to receive them. He then introduced Mayor Fred E. Keller, who, while turning over to the visitors the master-key of the city, enumerated the municipal activities of which South Bend is proud and pointed out the various scenes of interest here.

E. Louis Kahns, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was scheduled to speak, but having been called out of town Monday evening appointed William Happ to fill his place.

Speaking for the merchants and store keepers, Mr. Happ welcomed the Hibernians and suggested that they make tours of inspection to the various manufacturing plants.

Judge Deery Speaks.

Judge James E. Deery, of Indianapolis, state president of the A. O. H. made the next address, saying: "I am glad to welcome the Indiana representatives of the Irish race to the greatest small city in the United States. We should have a greater interest in St. Joseph county than in another, because it is here that the Irish at Notre Dame have done more to keep alive the Irish spirit of nationality than in any other county."

The chairman then introduced Mrs. John Arthur of Indianapolis, state president of the Ladies Auxiliary. After remarking upon the welcome tendered by the local auxiliary, Mrs. Arthur said:

"We are 2,500 Irish Catholic women banded together for our faith, our race and our mother land. And because we are banded together for our motherland, there is not an Irish mother who would not send her sons to defend the Stars and Stripes."

C. B. Stevenson, of the Stephenson mills, reiterated the welcomes.

He was followed by Joseph McGlaughlin, of Philadelphia, national president of the A. O. H.

"We are one of the broadest minded societies in the land of our adoption," said the president. "We are first for God and then for our country."

"Our church teaches us to be broad and liberal to every man, Irish or other, and to every woman, Irish or other, and to every child, Irish or other, and to every nation, Irish or other, and to every religion, Irish or other, and to every faith, Irish or other, and to every hope, Irish or other, and to every dream, Irish or other, and to every aspiration, Irish or other, and to every ambition, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to every triumph, Irish or other, and to every victory, Irish or other, and to every conquest, Irish or other, and to every achievement, Irish or other, and to every success, Irish or other, and to every happiness, Irish or other, and to every peace, Irish or other, and to every joy, Irish or other, and to every love, Irish or other, and to every friendship, Irish or other, and to every brotherhood, Irish or other, and to every sisterhood, Irish or other, and to every union, Irish or other, and to every alliance, Irish or other, and to every confederation, Irish or other, and to every league, Irish or other, and to every covenant, Irish or other, and to every pact, Irish or other, and to every agreement, Irish or other, and to every treaty, Irish or other, and to every compact, Irish or other, and to every bargain, Irish or other, and to every deal, Irish or other, and to every transaction, Irish or other, and to every business, Irish or other, and to every enterprise, Irish or other, and to every venture, Irish or other, and to every risk, Irish or other, and to every hazard, Irish or other, and to every peril, Irish or other, and to every danger, Irish or other, and to every threat, Irish or other, and to every alarm, Irish or other, and to every warning, Irish or other, and to every notice, Irish or other, and to every summons, Irish or other, and to every call, Irish or other, and to every demand, Irish or other, and to every requirement, Irish or other, and to every necessity, Irish or other, and to every want, Irish or other, and to every need, Irish or other, and to every desire, Irish or other, and to every wish, Irish or other, and to every thought, Irish or other, and to every feeling, Irish or other, and to every action, Irish or other, and to every word, Irish or other, and to every deed, Irish or other, and to every life, Irish or other, and to every death, Irish or other, and to every resurrection, Irish or other, and to every glory, Irish or other, and to